Borah Advocates Recognition of Soviet Russia

SAYS 'WRECKERS' OF TRADE WILL CAUSE LOSSES

WARNS UNITED STATES IS APPROACHING THE DOLE SYSTEM

"EVERYTHING POSSIBLE BEING DONE TO BREAK DOWN OUR TRADE WITH RUSSIA"

(Copyright, 1930, by United Press)

Washington, Dec. 12. — Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee warned today in an interview with the United Press that if the "wreckers" of Soviet-Russian-American trade relations have their way, this country will suffer vast economic loss. And he warned, too, that the United States was approaching the dole.

The senator's shaft was aimed at the treasury which has just issued trade regulations which he believes are designed to ruin Soviet trade with the United States. His remarks partly were prompted by the interview recently given by the United Press in Moscow by Joseph V. Stalin, so-called Soviet dictator.

This interview was read by Borah with great interest. He feels the statement merits consideration regardless of what may be thought on Stalin's policies or methods. Borah is one of the outstanding advocates of recognition of the Soviet Russian government.

But in his discussion of Soviet problems today Borah limited himself to the economic aspects of the situation. "Everything possible is being done in these days," he said, "to break down our trade with Russia—agitation and attacks and treasury regulations all calculated to interfere with and embarrass trade with Russia at a time when, above all things, we need foreign markets."

"Russia has purchased of our people in the last few years nearly eight hundred million dollars worth of goods. That gave employment to a great many American workmen. But the extent of our trade with Russia, unless the wreckers have their way, will be greatly increased in the next ten years."

"The Russian trade is there. Someone is bound to enjoy it. In spite of anything we may do, the Russian trade will go on, the only thing we may accomplish is to turn it into channels other than those of the United States. We may succeed in sending it to other countries. But we cannot destroy the market itself."

"We have close to five million men out of work. There will be a good many of them out of work for some time. We are approaching the saddest and most condemnatory spectacle of a free people—that is the dole."

"It is a humiliating and demoralizing thing in this country of stupendous wealth to have a part of the fine citizens of the country going daily to get something to eat. Notwithstanding this condition of affairs, the treasury regulations, whether so designed or not, are aiding greatly those who would stop all trade with Russia. For every dollar's worth of goods Russia sells to us, we will five dollars' worth of goods to Russia. And most of the commodities sent to this country from Russia are not produced here."

If recognition agitation developed, it would be on some such argument as the foregoing that it would be urged on President Hoover. Borah is not alone in the senate in favor of recognition. Notable among these who agree with him on this matter are Senator Cutting, republican, New Mexico, and Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana. But there appears no possibility of any action soon.

"It was only a short time ago," Borah continued, "when one of our distinguished American statesmen declared that Russia was an economic vacuum and would be so long as the present regime controlled Russia. After making that statement, he sank back in his chair and, no doubt, dilated on the marvelous display of wisdom which had just taken place."

"Nevertheless, the foreign trade of Russia last year was something like $890,000,000. And it is estimated that by 1933, it will run to $1,500,000,000. This economic vacuum is now buying something like $150,000,000 from the people of the United States, $128,000,000 from Germany, and something like $120,000,000 from England."

"At the present time we are doing the best we can to deal with an emergency—at least, that which we like to regard as an emergency. Providing great sums of money to give people a chance to work on public buildings, public works, roads and so forth."

"But I am wondering what we will do when the public buildings are built and the roads are completed and the treasury has been drained as low as we dare drain it. Unless we secure markets for our goods, the unemployment will continue. We ought to be deeply concerned in extending our foreign trade in every way possible."

LEE S. OVERMAN, NORTH CAROLINA SENATOR, DIES

LENGTH OF SERVICE IN UPPER HOUSE EXCEEDED BY ONLY 1 MEMBER 71ST SESSION

HEMORRHAGE OF THE STOMACH CAUSED HIS DEATH LAST MIDNIGHT

Washington, Dec. 12. — Lee Slater Overman, North Carolina democrat whose length of service in the United States senate was exceeded by only one member of the 71st congress, died today at his hotel apartment here.

Senator Overman, who would have been 77 years old had he lived until January 3 next, had served continuously since March 4, 1903. His democratic colleague from North Carolina, Furnifold M. Simmons, has been in the senate two years longer.

A hemorrhage of the stomach caused Overman's death at 12:25 a. m. He had been ill with a cold and indigestion since last Friday at the Shoreham hotel. With him at death were Mrs. Overman and his daughter, Mrs. E. N. Snow of Washington. A blood transfusion yesterday afternoon failed to prolong life more than a few hours.

Overman was born in Salisbury, N. C., educated at Trinity college (now Duke university) and began the practice of law in his native town in 1880. He was five times a member of the state legislature before his election to the senate. He was reelected Nov. 2, 1926 for his fifth term, which would have expired March 3, 1933.

Overman at his death was a member of the appropriations, judiciary and rules committee. As a member of the judiciary committee he led the support for Judge John J. Parker during the fight over Parker's supreme court nomination and subsequent rejection.

New York, Dec. 12. —(U.P.)—The reaction in financial circles to the closing of the Bank of the United States yesterday was interpreted in Wall street today as reflecting confidence in the general soundness of the banking situation.

Leading bankers observed the effects of the closing were surprisingly mild, in view of the size of the institution.

The readiness 23 leading banking institutions displayed in offering loans to depositors of the Bank of the United States, with their bankbooks acceptable as collateral, helped to allay what uneasiness there was among the nearly 400,000 depositors.

Sinclair Lewis Accepts Nobel Prize and Gives American Life Pungent Condemnation

COMMERCIALISM OF UNITED STATES DERIDED BY HIM

ARTIST, SAYS HE, DOES NOT COUNT IN COUNTRY PRODUCING 80-STORY BUILDINGS

"U. S. IS WORLD'S MOST CONTRADICTORY, STIRRING, DEPRESSING LAND"

By FREDRICK KUH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Stockholm, Sweden, Dec. 12. — Sinclair Lewis formally accepted the 1930 Nobel prize for literature today and at the same time delivered a pungent condemnation of the state of civilization in the United States.

In his speech of acceptance before a distinguished gathering of Scandinavian scholars, the brilliant American writer derided "American commercialism," which he said assigned an "inferior role" to the arts and literature.

Ironically enough, Lewis' attack on United States commercialism was delivered in the Stockholm Stock Exchange building, where the ceremony was held.

The lanky, red-haired author who drew his characters from "Main Street" and "Babbalanza" from the ranks of typical Americans, told his hearers that "the artist does not count in a country producing 80-story buildings, millions of automobiles and billions of bushels of wheat."

Characterizing himself as "honest but indiscreet and a little impolite," Lewis extended his sweeping attack over broad fields, declaring "business lords rule the United States," which he described as "the world's most contradictory, stirring and depressing land."

He derided the United States universities and colleges and the American Academy of Arts and Letters came in for strong criticism, while the author denounced American teachers of literature and critics.

In concluding the hour-long speech, which he read from a manuscript in addressing members of the Nobel committee and the Swedish Academy, Lewis, however, struck an optimistic note as to the future of literature and art in America.

"The United States is emerging from the stiffness of safe, sane and dull provincialism," he said.

Without mentioning any names, Lewis referred to Henry Van Dyke, president of the National Institute of Arts and Letters in the United States and one of the Americans who criticized the Nobel committee for awarding the prize to Lewis.

The author expressed the hope "that this former diplomat will not demand the landing of United States marines at Stockholm to protect American literary rights."

"Lewis also suggested that the Swedish Academy 'honored America by assuming that Americans are not a puerile, backwoods clan afraid of criticism, but rather mature and able to contemplate dissection of their land.'"

The Nobel which is assured to popularity usually must assert that all American men are tall, handsome, rich, honest and powerful golfers," said Lewis in reference to literary tastes in the United States, "and also that American girls may be wild, but they always change into perfect wives and mothers. Americans mostly revere writers in popular magazines who, in chorus, chant that America with its 120,000,000 population, is still as simple and pastoral as when it had 45,000,000 population."

"These writers assume the relationship between husband and wife is the same in an apartment in a 30-story palace today—with three motor cars below and five books on the library shelves and a divorce imminent—as a similar relationship in a five room cottage in 1880."

Lewis recalled that the awarding of the Nobel prize to himself "was not altogether popular in America." He then praised the work of Theodore Dreiser, Eugene O'Neill, James Branch Cabell, Willa Cather, Henry L. Menck, Upton Sinclair, Joseph Herge, Ernest Hemingway and Sherwood Anderson.

"It would have been almost as evil to have chosen one of them as myself, but as a characteristic American I rejoice that they are my countrymen," he said.

While industrial, finance and science flourish in America, the only respected are in architecture, Lewis said.

"The American artist is considered a failure without a butler, a motor and a Palm Beach villa where he often is permitted to mingle almost on

CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF STATE OF MINNESOTA BLUE SKY LAW

JURY ARRIVES AT VERDICT AFTER OVER FIVE HOURS DELIBERATION

Minneapolis, Dec. 12. —(U.P.)—Sentence of Albert A. Robbins, president of the defunct 10,000 Lakes Fur Farms corporation was postponed today until December 20 by Judge W. C. Leary. Leary set December 16 as date for the start of the trial of Frank P. O'Malley, secretary of the concern.

Minneapolis, Dec. 12. —(U.P.)—Albert A. Robbins, president of the defunct Ten Thousand Lakes Fur Farms corporation, was found guilty late yesterday of violation of the state's blue sky law.

After more than five hours deliberation, the jurors found Robbins had sold unregistered securities when he conducted business of the fur farm with sales of muskrat units contracts to the public.

Robbins was freed under $5,500 bail pending his appearance in court today for sentence by Judge W. C. Leary. Robbins' attorney, Hosmer A. Brown, indicated the conviction would be appealed.

Frank P. O'Malley, secretary of the defunct company, and W. H. Renslow, a salesman employed by the corporation, were slated for trial on similar charges of violation of the state blue sky laws by sale of muskrat contracts.

A case against Robbins in federal court on charges of using the mails to defraud is pending.

STENOGRAPHER KEPT A SECRET HER ENGAGEMENT

GRACE BRANDON TESTIFIES AT TRIAL OF MAJOR CHARLES A. SHEPARD

ARMY OFFICER IS ACCUSED OF MURDERING HIS WIFE

By REX R. GOAD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Kansas City, Kansas, Dec. 12. —Care was taken for a time to keep secret her engagement to Major Charles A. Shepard, Grace Brandon, San Antonio stenographer, testified today at the army officers' trial on charges of murdering his wife.

With an air of defiance, she answered questions of attorneys for her former fiancé, on trial for his life in federal court here.

The engagement ring he sent her in October, 1929, was not worn in public, Miss Brandon said. She testified she told her parents "an old lady gave it to her."

Their romance was reviewed in detail from the time their troth was pledged in a whispered toast in a bar at Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, in November, 1928, up to preparations for their wedding in August, 1930.

The girl, her testimony indicated, did not take the whispered troth seriously, but the government blocked attempts of the defense to bring out that she regarded the affair with Major Shepard at that time as a mere flirtation.

When the correspondence turned to attention, Miss Brandon by another officer, she wrote:

"I told Major White I had decided it would be a mistake to let him try to make love to me when I did not care for him—and he finally agreed it was not fair to him, to me or to you, dear; that is all of that—so don't worry any more, darling. No, I won't feel sorry for him again, dear. No, I'll never get tired of your loving me."

In looking forward to plans for marriage, she told the major:

"I would love an apartment with hotel service, dear; I could devote all of my time to my sweetheart, then. Your plans for my daily routine after we are married certainly sound lovely, dear. I shall be busy and so happy, all the time, sweetheart."

SERIES WHOLESAL MURDERS REVEALED, FIVE BODIES FOUND

BURIAL PLACE OF MISSING FAMILY DISCOVERED NEAR WATFORD CITY, N. D.

A. E. HAVEN AND 3 CHILDREN'S BODIES LOCATED IN BARN, BABY IN REFUSE HEAP

Watford City, N. D., Dec. 12. —(U.P.)—A series of wholesale murders was revealed today with the finding of five bodies of the A. E. Haven family.

Police were led to the five corpses by Charles Bannon, who revealed the burial places of the missing family when police questioned him because he was supposed to have taken property from the Haven farm near Schlar.

The disappearance of the family had been a mystery until Bannon quite suddenly revealed that he had helped bury the members of the family as police officers questioned him about the theft of property from the farm.

Bannon blamed Mrs. Haven for the deaths and said he had only helped her bury the bodies of her husband and four children. Mrs. Haven was said to be mentally deranged by McKenzie county authorities.

The bodies recovered were those of A. E. Haven, the husband, Daniel, 19, Leland, 16, a three year old child and a three months old baby. The baby's body was found when authorities dug into a refuse heap at Bannon's direction while the four others were discovered in a barn.

Officers today searched the farm for the body of Mrs. Haven whose blood stained sweater was found yesterday.

Bannon was accused of taking hogs from the Haven farm and selling them as his own.

Watford City, N. D., Dec. 12. —(U.P.)—Men armed with spades today started a foot by foot search of the A. E. Haven farm, near here seeking bodies of two more members of the Haven family, apparently wiped out in a wholesale murder plot.

Coroner Harry Larson said that remains of four persons were found at the farm yesterday. The bodies were so disintegrated that searchers first believed five bodies had been discovered.

Police believe that the bodies apparently had been buried since the Haven family disappeared last February 10.

The tragedy was revealed when relatives of the Havens brought embezzlement charges against Bannon, who had been employed on the Haven farm.

At a preliminary hearing on the charges, Bannon, suddenly told police that Mrs. Haven had hired him to bury bodies of members of the family after she had killed them.

The hearing was adjourned and Bannon led police to the farm where the corpses were discovered. Bannon said that Mrs. Haven had fled with her child after the killing, but authorities declared they were skeptical of his story.

TOURIST VISITORS SPENT MILLIONS

10,000 LAKES-GREATER MINNESOTA ASSOCIATION HEARS ANNUAL REPORTS

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 12. —(U.P.)—Minnesota's 1,461,865 tourist visitors spent $76,709,290 during their stay here this year, H. C. Hotelling, secretary of the Ten Thousand Lakes-Greater Minnesota Association, said at the organization's convention today.

Fewer sales of Minnesota farms were made this year than last, but more inquiries concerning them were received.

In 1930, 858 farms were reported sold compared with 1,567 in 1929.

Hotelling said tourist resorts in the state had increased from 6,000 five years ago to 1,040 this year.

Other convention speakers were Bishop G. G. Bennett of the Episcopal diocese of Duluth, Mrs. Sam Rask, Blooming Prairie, and Fred Schlipf, publisher of the St. Cloud Times-Journal.

NO REPUBLICAN LEADERS RISE TO DEFEND HIM

PRESIDENT FACES MOST BITTER ATTACK MADE IN YEARS

MEMBERS OF PARTY SAY HOOVER DECLINES TO TAKE THEM INTO CONFIDENCE

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Dec. 12. —(U.P.)—Feeling between President Hoover and the senate reached a point only short of an open break today.

Reports at the White House were that President Hoover is indignant that no republican leaders have risen in the senate to defend him in face of the most bitter attacks that have been showered on a president in years.

Republican leaders on the other hand complain that Mr. Hoover has declined to take them into his confidence; that without warning he gave to the press the statement accusing senators and congressmen of "playing politics at the expense of human misery." They feel that Mr. Hoover has made it difficult for them to launch any effective defense.

Some close friends of the president said today he might issue another attack on congress this afternoon. The advisability of doing this was under consideration at the White House.

This situation was boiled up as a result of the change of tactics on the part of Mr. Hoover who has accepted the advice of friends that he strike out in a more Rooseveltian fashion against congress.

The cry of "dole" was raised by Republican Floor Leader John D. Tilson in opening the administration fight against the $60,000,000 senate drought relief bill.

Tilson said the provision for loans for purchase of human food was nothing but a dole. He denounced it as un-American and as establishing a dangerous precedent.

The floor leader approved the provisions for loans to farmers in the drought areas for purchase of seed, fertilizer and livestock feed, but said there was a "very sharp dividing line" between such loans, which have been made before, and the new proposal for food loans.

The bill was not before the house today, but Tilson took the occasion to express the administration's opposition in advance. The measure is expected to come up next week. The republican floor leader did not discuss, either, the difference in the appropriation made by the senate, $60,000,000, and that approved by the house agriculture committee, which was $30,000,000. President Hoover had asked only $25,000,000.

Washington, Dec. 12. — Speaker of the House Nicholas Longworth was devising strategy today to bring the support of the house to President Hoover and check the attempt to raise drought relief loans appropriations to the $60,000,000 voted by the senate. The president favors a $25,000,000 loan fund.

It requires some strategy because of many farm state republicans who would hesitate to vote against the $60,000,000 and a vote is being delayed while Longworth and the other two members of the so-called "big three"—Republican Floor Leader Tilson and Chairman Snell of the rules committee—decided what to do.

The vote probably will not come before early next week. Action has been delayed since the senate passed its bill despite protests of democrats who have openly expressed suspicion of the leaders' intentions.

The strategy now being considered is to prevent a direct vote on the $60,000,000 appropriation by submitting the original house bill of $30,000,000, with no opportunity to amend it and with very little debate—in other words, what is termed a "gag rule."

This represents the first time that the strong republican house majority has been called upon at this session to hold up the president's hands. It back-stopped the White House on several occasions at the last session when the senate over-rode Mr. Hoover's wishes, notably on the farm relief bill.

But the psychological effect of the recent elections and the hesitancy of western republicans to vote against a large loan appropriation has confronted Longworth, whose word so long has been law, with a dilemma at this time. It has produced a strange, and in some respects a comical situation, during the last few days.

Democrats are demanding a vote on the $60,000,000 appropriation, believing, as they do, that a number of republicans, at least, likely will break away from the party ranks in this case.

Longworth realizes this, and knows that in such a case the large republican majority that has followed him, usually with no question, may become disrupted. In the new congress his power will wane, but he is determined to hold up his end during the present short session.

"The republicans will stand behind the president," he predicted today. Meanwhile republican senate leaders have served on President Hoover a friendly ultimatum in reply to his (Continued on Page 8, Column 4)

The lanky, red-haired author who drew his characters for "Main Street" and "Babbitt" from the ranks of typical Americans, told his hearers that "the artist does not count in a country producing 80-story buildings, millions of automobiles and billions of bushels of wheat."

Characterizing himself as "honest but indignant and a little impolite," Lewis extended his sweeping attack over broad fields, declaring "business lords rule the United States," which he described as "the world's most contradictory, stirring and depressing land."

He derided the United States universities and colleges and the American Academy of Arts and Letters came in for strong criticism, while the author denounced American teachers of literature and critics.

In concluding the hour-long speech, which he read from a manuscript in addressing members of the Nobel committee and the Swedish Academy, Lewis, however, struck an optimistic note as to the future of literature and art in America.

"The United States is emerging from the stiffness of safe, sane and dull provincialism," he said.

Without mentioning any names, Lewis referred to Henry Van Dyke, president of the National Institute of Arts and Letters in the United States and one of the Americans who criticized the Nobel committee for awarding the prize to Lewis.

The author expressed the hope "that this former diplomat will not demand the landing of United States marines at Stockholm to protect American literary rights."

"Lewis also suggested that the Swedish Academy 'honored America by assuming that Americans are not a puerile, backwoods clan afraid of criticism, but rather mature and able to contemplate dissection of their land.'"

The Nobel which is assured to popularity usually must assert that all American men are tall, handsome, rich, honest and powerful golfers," said Lewis in reference to literary tastes in the United States, "and also that American girls may be wild, but they always change into perfect wives and mothers. Americans mostly revere writers in popular magazines who, in chorus, chant that America with its 120,000,000 population, is still as simple and pastoral as when it had 45,000,000 population."

"These writers assume the relationship between husband and wife is the same in an apartment in a 30-story palace today—with three motor cars below and five books on the library shelves and a divorce imminent—as a similar relationship in a five room cottage in 1890."

Lewis recalled that the awarding of the Nobel prize to himself "was not altogether popular in America." He then praised the work of Theodore Dreiser, Eugene O'Neill, James Branch Cabell, Willa Cather, Henry L. Mencksen, Upton Sinclair, Joseph Hergeheimer, Ernest Hemingway and Sherwood Anderson.

"It would have been almost as evil to have chosen one of them as myself, but as a characteristic American I rejoice that they are my countrymen," he said.

While industrial, finance and science flourish in America, the only respected are in architecture, Lewis said.

"The American artist is considered a failure without a butler, a motor and a Palm Beach villa where he often is permitted to mingle almost on

Wabash, Ind., Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Physicians who amputated the left leg of James Young, 73, have promised him that if he hangs up his stocking Christmas eve, "Santa Claus will put a wooden leg, painted red, in it." Young says he figures that will be "pretty classy for an old guy like me."

ALBERT A. ROBBINS, FUR FARM HEAD, IS FOUND GUILTY

CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF STATE OF MINNESOTA BLUE SKY LAW

JURY ARRIVES AT VERDICT AFTER OVER FIVE HOURS DELIBERATION

Minneapolis, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Sentence of Albert A. Robbins, president of the defunct 10,000 Lakes Fur Farms corporation was postponed today until December 20 by Judge W. C. Leary.

Leary set December 16 as date for the start of the trial of Frank P. O'Malley, secretary of the concern.

Minneapolis, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Albert A. Robbins, president of the defunct Ten Thousand Lakes Fur Farms corporation, was found guilty late yesterday of violation of the state's blue sky law.

After more than five hours deliberation, the jurors found Robbins had sold unregistered securities when he conducted business of the fur farm with sales of muskrat units contracts to the public.

Robbins was freed under $5,000 bail pending his appearance in court today for sentence by Judge W. C. Leary. Robbins' attorney, Hosmer A. Brown, indicated the conviction would be appealed.

Frank P. O'Malley, secretary of the defunct company, and W. H. Renslow, a salesman employed by the corporation, were slated for trial on similar charges of violation of the state blue sky laws by sale of muskrat contracts.

A case against Robbins in federal court on charges of using the mails to defraud is pending.

STENOGRAPHER KEPT A SECRET HER ENGAGEMENT

GRACE BRANDON TESTIFIES AT TRIAL OF MAJOR CHARLES A. SHEPARD

ARMY OFFICER IS ACCUSED OF MURDERING HIS WIFE

By REX R. GOAD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Kansas City, Kansas, Dec. 12.—Care was taken for a time to keep secret her engagement to Major Charles A. Shepard, Grace Brandon, San Antonio stenographer, testified today at the army officers' trial on charges of murdering his wife.

With an air of defiance, she answered questions of attorneys for her former fiancé, on trial for his life in federal court here.

The engagement ring he sent her in October, 1929, was not worn in public, Miss Brandon said. She testified she told her parents "an old lady gave it to her."

Their romance was reviewed in detail from the time their troth was pledged in a whispered toast in a bar at Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, in November, 1928, up to preparations for their wedding in August, 1930.

The girl, her testimony indicated, did not take the whispered troth seriously, but the government blocked attempts of the defense to bring out that she regarded the affair with Major Shepard at that time as a mere flirtation.

When the correspondence turned to attentions paid Miss Brandon by another officer, she wrote:

"I told Major White I had decided it would be a mistake to let him try to make love to me when I did not care for him—and he finally agreed it was not fair to him, to me or to you, dear; that is all of that—so don't worry any more, darling. No, I won't feel sorry for him again, dear. No, I'll never get tired of your loving me."

In looking forward to plans for marriage, she told the major:

"I would love an apartment with hotel service, dear; I could devote all of my time to my sweetheart, then. Your plans for my daily routine after we are married certainly sound lovely, dear; I shall be busy and so happy, all the time, sweetheart."

SEE BETTER TIMES AHEAD

The end of the business slump is just ahead, speakers told 1,400 leaders of industry at the Illinois Manufacturers' Association's annual banquet in Chicago Tuesday evening. ### SERIES WHOLESAL MURDERS REVEALED, FIVE BODIES FOUND

BURIAL PLACE OF MISSING FAMILY DISCOVERED NEAR WATFORD CITY, N. D.

A. E. HAVEN AND 3 CHILDREN'S BODIES LOCATED IN BARN, BABY IN REFUSE HEAP

Watford City, N. D., Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—A series of wholesale murders was revealed today with the finding of five bodies of the A. E. Haven family.

Police were lead to the five corpses by Charles Bannon, who revealed the burial places of the missing family when police questioned him because he was supposed to have taken property from the Haven farm near Schaffer.

The disappearance of the family had been a mystery until Bannon quite suddenly revealed that he had helped bury the members of the family as police officers questioned him about the theft of property from the farm.

Bannon blamed Mrs. Haven for the deaths and said he had only helped her bury the bodies of her husband and four children. Mrs. Haven was said to be mentally deranged by McKenzie county authorities.

The bodies recovered were those of A. E. Haven, the husband, Daniel, 19, Leland, 16, a three year old child and a three months old baby. The baby's body was found when authorities dug into a refuse heap at Bannon's direction while the four others were discovered in a barn.

Officers today searched the farm for the body of Mrs. Haven whose blood stained sweater was found yesterday.

Bannon was accused of taking hogs from the Haven farm and selling them as his own.

Watford City, N. D., Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Men armed with spades today started a foot by foot search of the A. E. Haven farm, near here seeking bodies of two more members of the Haven family, apparently wiped out in a wholesale murder plot.

Coroner Harry Larson said that remains of four persons were found at the farm yesterday. The bodies were so disintegrated that searchers first believed five bodies had been discovered.

Police believe that the bodies apparently had been buried since the Haven family disappeared last February 10.

The tragedy was revealed when relatives of the Havens brought embezzlement charges against Bannon, who had been employed on the Haven farm.

At a preliminary hearing on the charges Bannon, suddenly told police that Mrs. Haven had hired him to bury bodies of members of the family after she had killed them.

The hearing was adjourned and Bannon led police to the farm where the corpses were discovered. Bannon said that Mrs. Haven had fled with her child after the killing, but authorities declared they were skeptical of his story.

TOURIST VISITORS SPENT MILLIONS

10,000 LAKES-GREATER MINNESOTA ASSOCIATION HEARS ANNUAL REPORTS

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Minnesota's 1,461,865 tourist visitors spent $76,709,290 during their stay here this year, H. C. Hotelling, secretary of the Ten Thousand Lakes-Greater Minnesota Association, said at the organization's convention today.

Fewer sales of Minnesota farms were made this year than last, but more inquiries concerning them were received.

In 1930, 858 farms were reported sold compared with 1,567 in 1929.

Hotelling said tourist resorts in the state had increased from 6,000 five years ago to 1,040 this year.

Other convention speakers were Bishop G. G. Bennett of the Episcopal diocese of Duluth, Mrs. Sam Rask, Blooming Prairie, and Fred Schlipf, publisher of the St. Cloud Times-Journal.

NO REPUBLICAN LEADERS RISE TO DEFEND HIM

PRESIDENT FACES MOST BITTER ATTACK MADE IN YEARS

MEMBERS OF PARTY SAY HOOVER DECLINES TO TAKE THEM INTO CONFIDENCE

By THOMAS L. STOKES

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Feeling between President Hoover and the senate reached a point only short of an open break today.

Reports at the White House were that no republican leaders have risen in the senate to defend him in face of the most bitter attacks that have been showered on a president in years. Republican leaders on the other hand complain that Mr. Hoover has declined to take them into his confidence; that without warning he gave to the press the statement accusing senators and congressmen of "playing politics at the expense of human misery." They feel that Mr. Hoover has made it difficult for them to launch any effective defense.

Some close friends of the president said today he might issue another attack on congress this afternoon. The advisability of doing this was under consideration at the White House.

This situation was boiled up as a result of the change of tactics on the part of Mr. Hoover who has accepted the advice of friends that he strike out in a more Rooseveltian fashion against congress.

The cry of "dole" was raised by Republican Floor Leader John D. Tilson in opening the administration fight against the $60,000,000 senate drought relief bill.

Tilson said the provision for loans for purchase of human food was nothing but a dole. He denounced it as un-American and as establishing a dangerous precedent.

The floor leader approved the provisions for loans to farmers in the drought areas for purchase of seed, fertilizer and livestock feed, but said there was a "very sharp dividing line" between such loans, which have been made before, and the new proposal for food loans.

The bill was not before the house today, but Tilson took the occasion to express the administration's opposition in advance. The measure is expected to come up next week. The republican floor leader did not discuss, either, the difference in the appropriation made by the senate, $60,000,000, and that approved by the house agriculture committee, which was $30,000,000. President Hoover had asked only $25,000,000.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Speaker of the House Nicholas Longworth was devising strategy today to bring the support of the house to President Hoover and check the attempt to raise drought relief loans appropriations to the $60,000,000 voted by the senate. The president favors a $25,000,000 loan fund.

It requires some strategy because of many farm state republicans who would hesitate to vote against the $60,000,000 and a vote is being delayed while Longworth and the other two members of the so-called "big three"—Republican Floor Leader Tilson and Chairman Snell of the rules committee—decided what to do.

The vote probably will not come before early next week. Action has been delayed since the senate passed its bill despite protests of democrats who have openly expressed suspicion of the leaders' intentions.

The strategy now being considered is to prevent a direct vote on the $60,000,000 appropriation by submitting the original house bill of $30,000,000, with no opportunity to amend it and with very little debate—in other words, what is termed a "gag rule."

This represents the first time that the strong republican house majority has been called upon at this session to hold up the president's hands. It back-stopped the White House on several occasions at the last session when the senate over-rode Mr. Hoover's wishes, notably on the farm relief bill.

But the psychological effect of the recent elections and the hesitancy of western republicans to vote against a large loan appropriation has confronted Longworth, whose word so long has been law, with a dilemma at this time. It has produced a strange, and in some respects a comical situation, during the last few days.

Democrats are demanding a vote on the $60,000,000 appropriation, believing, as they do, that a number of republicans, at least, likely will break away from the party ranks in this case. Longworth realizes this, and knows that in such a case the large republican majority that has followed him, usually with no question, may become disrupted. In the new congress his power will wane, but he is determined to hold up his end during the present short session.

"The republicans will stand behind the president," he predicted today.

Meanwhile republican senate leaders have served on President Hoover a friendly ultimatum in reply to his

Feast Outdoes Former Events at Nokay Lake

The Nokay Lake Farm Bureau Unit met at the Nokay Lake town hall on Thursday. This event was the Harvest Time Festival. The Nokay Lake Farm Bureau Unit always serves good meals to its members and guests but on this occasion they always outdo themselves to make it a real eat-fest. All the products from the farm and the skill of the women folks is brought into service to make this a super-culinary event. Last year the feast centered around huge orders of oyster stew. This year the main feature seemed to center around a wonderful variety of many marvelous pies. Dozens upon dozens of pies were cut into generous portions. Every variety known to the able Nokay Lake bakers was placed on the table. Preceding this there were different varieties of meats, baked beans, salads, pickles, sandwiches, cakes etc. Eyes were bulging long before the pies were even dented. But such was the wonderful succulence of these gifts of cookery that untold numbers of them were consumed at this lavish banquet.

A program then followed consisting of music by the Johnson Orchestra of Brainerd and singing by Mrs. M. A. Gorden and Mr. Pointon. County Agent Roth gave a talk on the "Trend of Times." A subscription was raised to help some of the poorer families in the community. The club voted an additional gift of a box of apples as a Christmas gift to a particularly poor family in the neighborhood.

SERIOUS RENEWAL OF GANG WARFARE IN THE WINDY CITY

RUDOLPH MARENO, JAMES TOMASULO SHOT AND TOSSED FROM CAR

ONE OF VICTIMS STILL BREATHING WHEN PICKED UP BY OFFICERS

Chicago, Dec. 12.—(UP)—The first serious renewal of gang warfare in Chicago for several weeks occurred today when Rudolph Mareno, 24, and James Tomasulo, 28, were shot three times each and tossed from automobiles into a ditch a quarter of a mile from the Beverly Country Club.

One of the men was still breathing when picked up by officers, who were called by a motorist who saw the men in the ditch. He died before reaching a hospital. The other man was dead when found. Both were shot in the head.

Tomasulo had a long criminal record and had used many aliases. Mareno had no record that police knew of. Both were well dressed.

Feast Outdoes Former Events at Nokay Lake

The Nokay Lake Farm Bureau Unit met at the Nokay Lake town hall on Thursday. This event was the Harvest Time Festival. The Nokay Lake Farm Bureau Unit always serves good meals to its members and guests but on this occasion they always outdo themselves to make it a real eat-fest. All the products from the farm and the skill of the women folks is brought into service to make this a super-culinary event. Last year the feast centered around huge orders of oyster stew. This year the main feature seemed to center around a wonderful variety of many marvelous pies. Dozens upon dozens of pies were cut into generous portions. Every variety known to the able Nokay Lake bakers was placed on the table. Preceding this there were different varieties of meats, baked beans, salads, pickles, sandwiches, cakes etc. Eyes were bulging long before the pies were even dented. But such was the wonderful succulence of these gifts of cookery that untold numbers of them were consumed at this lavish banquet.

A program then followed consisting of music by the Johnson Orchestra of Brainerd and singing by Mrs. M. A. Gorden and Mr. Pointon. County Agent Roth gave a talk on the "Trend of Times." A subscription was raised to help some of the poorer families in the community. The club voted an additional gift of a box of apples as a Christmas gift to a particularly poor family in the neighborhood.

SERIOUS RENEWAL OF GANG WARFARE IN THE WINDY CITY

RUDOLPH MARENO, JAMES TOMASULO SHOT AND TOSSED FROM CAR

ONE OF VICTIMS STILL BREATHING WHEN PICKED UP BY OFFICERS

Chicago, Dec. 12.—(UP)—The first serious renewal of gang warfare in Chicago for several weeks occurred today when Rudolph Mareno, 24, and James Tomasulo, 28, were shot three times each and tossed from automobiles into a ditch a quarter of a mile from the Beverly Country Club.

One of the men was still breathing when picked up by officers, who were called by a motorist who saw the men

BLASE NEW YORK EXCITED OVER GAME

ARMY AND NAVY RESUME ATHLETIC RELATIONS TO AID UNEMPLOYED

New York, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Less than 24 hours from now the Army and Navy will be busy resuming athletic relations for the benefit of the unemployed on the grass of Yankee Stadium—and Blase New York is excited about it.

To be sure, the relation is only temporary and probably will leave the two academies further apart than a hawk could fly in a week. But the 70,000 persons who will watch the game on Saturday afternoon are not interested in next year's schedule.

The ticket sale, which started slowly, was booming today. Only some ten or twelve thousand pasteboards remained unsold and they were going fast. If they are sold, the game will be watched by a capacity crowd of 80,000.

Navy, 60 strong including coaches, trainers, officers and Bill the Goat, arrived late yesterday. The Midshipmen will hold their final practice this afternoon in the stadium in order to become accustomed to the field and the winds that make catching and kicking a football something of an art.

Army was lodged at Briarcliffe Lodge in Westchester.

Helmet Organization

is Barred by Censor

Berlin, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—A film depicting a mass demonstration of the steel helmet organization at Coblenz was prohibited today by the censor, on the ground that it would endanger foreign relations and give the impression that Germany is preparing for war.

BLASE NEW YORK EXCITED OVER GAME

ARMY AND NAVY RESUME ATHLETIC RELATIONS TO AID UNEMPLOYED

New York, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Less than 24 hours from now the Army and Navy will be busy resuming athletic relations for the benefit of the unemployed on the grass of Yankee Stadium—and Blase New York is excited about it.

To be sure, the relation is only temporary and probably will leave the two academies further apart than a hawk could fly in a week. But the 70,000 persons who will watch the game on Saturday afternoon are not interested in next year's schedule.

The ticket sale, which started slowly, was booming today. Only some ten or twelve thousand pasteboards remained unsold and they were going fast. If they are sold, the game will be watched by a capacity crowd of 80,000.

Navy, 60 strong including coaches, trainers, officers and Bill the Goat, arrived late yesterday. The Midshipmen will hold their final practice this afternoon in the stadium in order to become accustomed to the field and the winds that make catching and kicking a football something of an art.

Army was lodged at Briarcliffe Lodge in Westchester.

Film Showing Steel

is Barred by Censor

Berlin, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—A film depicting a mass demonstration of the steel helmet organization at Coblenz was prohibited today by the censor, on the ground that it would endanger foreign relations and give the impression that Germany is preparing for war.

Water Power and Public Utility Policy

IN Referendum No. 57 from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, being a report on Water Power and Public Utility Policy, a committee from the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce considered the question and reported, following which the Chamber voted in accordance with the report. The committee included T. H. Crosswell, chairman, Carl Zapffe and R. T. Campbell.

The questions involved in the referendum are whether the Federal or State governments shall control in development of water power resources, regulation of distribution and rates of public utilities; the extent to which these activities shall be left to private enterprise; the position of the federal government in the business of construction and operation of water power plants and public utilities.

Fifteen questions covering the above points were submitted for answer by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The answers as recommended by the committee are on the basis:

First, that the rights of the states should not be encroached on by the Federal Government, which therefore should not interfere except in matters left to it by the state constitution and the United States constitution; namely, protection of navigation and regulation of interstate commerce.

Second, that private enterprise should be encouraged to develop water resources and develop and operate power and public utilities under state regulation.

The committee recommends sale of the Muscle Shoals project in Tennessee for the reasons set forth in the report of the United States Chamber of Commerce, which we quote as follows: "The problem of what to do with the Muscle Shoals has been under consideration by Congress for over ten years. The original project was undertaken as a war measure. Nitrogen is an important element in fertilizer, however, as well as in munitions of war, and the question of how best to utilize the properties after the war, has turned largely on the question of how the project could be used to the advantage of agriculture.

"The Muscle Shoals project was built to fix nitrogen from the air, and the process then in use required large amounts of power. Such power existed at Muscle Shoals and for this reason the project was undertaken at that point. World wide interest in the nitrogen problem has advanced the art of fixation and materially reduced the electric power requirements of certain processes.

"In the United States there has been such rapid advancement in the capacity of private plants producing nitrogen synthetically, and in the amount of nitrogen produced from gas and coke plants, that we are no longer dependent upon Chile for nitrates; and the process at Muscle Shoals has become so far out of date that they are of little value as a source of nitrogen, either for munitions of war or for fertilizers. As a result the chief value of Muscle Shoals properties is for the generation of hydro-electric power.

"The judgment of this committee that it is unwise for the government to embark on hydro-electric power projects has already been expressed. On the question of the government embarking on the manufacture of fertilizer, the principle applies with equal force.

"We see no reasons why the existing fertilizer plants at Muscle Shoals should not be appraised and sold or leased for what they are actually worth as a means of manufacturing fertilizer, or for any other purpose, and that the same should be done with the power plants. We believe it is unwise for the federal government to engage in the hydro-electric business through the development of power at other points on the Tennessee river. These developments should be primarily under the jurisdiction of the States and the Federal Power Commission and aimed to encourage private enterprise. Any interest that the Federal Government may have in navigation and flood control can be adequately protected by the Federal Power Commission under the provisions of the Federal Waterpower Act."

We recommend, said the Brainerd committee, that as the Muscle Shoals project is not equipped to use the most modern and economical methods of nitrogen fixation and is, therefore, of relatively little value for agriculture or national defense, it be sold or leased as it now stands on the best possible terms.

The local committee calls the attention of the members to the fact that the questions in his referendum will be viewed in different states from various angles and wish to suggest that members should be guided in the vote by consideration of the interests of the State of Minnesota and of Brainerd, which has been the standpoint of the committee.

Why the Censorship?

It is reported that a government censorship has been clamped on some 13 countries of the old world and the man in the street wonders what it is all about. In spite of peace prizes and peace treaties, preparation for war goes on in Europe as well as Asia.

In spite of the example of a World War, the world seems to have forgotten the lesson it was supposed to learn at that time. The reason the World War came like the flash of a bolt of lightning is because the censorship at that time forbade many discussions and kept in the background vital news.

Frank B. Kellogg, awarded a Nobel peace prize, has called attention to the fact that another World War will sap civilization and kill white supremacy.

If a general war ever starts it will be hideous compared to the former one, because of the new inventions in death dealing gases, poisons, and general machinery of warfare. Instead of being confined to the regular combatants it will extend to the rear and envelop all citizens, non-combatants, men, women and children. A factory or a farm will be considered as essential in the fighting game and morale as a fort or ship.

UPWARDS of 80,000 persons will crowd into Yankee Stadium Saturday to see the most colorful sport pageant of the season, renewal of the football feud between teams representing the United States Military and Naval Academies. The proceeds will go to the unemployed fund.

THOUGH "service" is a much used and often abused word, there are still places where the genuine brand is appreciated. In advertising and selling especially, it is essential.

SINCLAIR LEWIS ACCEPTS NOBEL PRIZE AND GIVES AMERICAN LIFE PUNGENT CONDEMNATION

terms of equality with the banking barons," the author said. "But the artist is oppressed by something worse than poverty. He is oppressed by the feeling that what he creates does not matter and that readers expect him to be a decorator or a clown."

Remarking that the artist in the United States is without an institution to which he can turn for inspiration and acceptable criticism or valued praise, Lewis said the American Academy of Arts and Letters "has no relationship with American life and aspirations." He said the academy included a few excellent members, such as Nicholas Murray Butler and Edith Wharton, but he deplored the omission of Dreiser, O'Neill and 11 other writers as "the exclusion of most of our few giants." On the other hand, he said, the Academy "found room for bad poets, insignificant playwrights and two gentlemen known only because they are presidents of universities."

Most universities and colleges in the United States are divorced from reality, he said.

"These and the American musical emporiums, schools for teaching of theology, plumbing and sign painting are as thick as motor traffic," he continued. "Students in America everywhere are equally ardent about avoiding the disadvantage of becoming learned and about gaining social prestige or a bachelor of arts degree."

He ridiculed what he termed "the inflated importance" of college football and told his audience of scholars that "a great college football game is passionately witnessed by 80,000 persons, who paid five dollars apiece and motored ten to a thousand miles for the ecstasy of watching 22 men chase one another up and down a curiously marked field."

"A capable player nearly ranks with our greatest and most admired heroes, even with Henry Ford, Herbert Hoover or Colonel Lindbergh," he said.

He condemned the usual courses in literature at American universities.

"American professors like their literature clear, cold, pure and very dead," Lewis said. Criticism in the United States, despite a wealth of talent, "is a chill activity pursued by jocular spinsters, former baseball reporters and acid professors."

He referred to Hamlin Garland, the American novelist and dramatist, as the inspirer of his own youth, but he said he was "afraid Garland would be acutely annoyed to know he enabled me to write of America as I see it."

Lewis' speech was written during his ocean voyage to Sweden to receive the Nobel prize.

ALL CITY RELIEF IS INVESTIGATED

No Claims Approved Until Workers Satisfied That They Are Just

All relief provided through the city poor fund is first investigated thoroughly to satisfy the city that the one receiving aid has a legitimate claim, Harry L. Greger, chairman of the poor committee, reported today to quell rumors that in some instances Brainerd was giving aid to undeserving persons in the way of Thanksgiving baskets.

"The poor committee cannot give out baskets. The claims must first pass the approval of Miss Eula Michael (city nurse) and when aid is seen as necessary, orders are given on Brainerd stores," Mr. Greger said.

The same rule will hold in respect to moneys received through the Brainerd Community Relief Fund. All applications must be approved by Miss Michael and members of the approval committee of the executive committee of the fund: Mrs. W. F. Dieckhaus, M. McDonald, Archie Falconer.

Mrs. W. C. Mannis is now aiding Miss Michael in taking down information regarding persons for aid.

Any receiving aid must be bona fide residents of Brainerd.

McCABE ON STATE CREDIT GROUPING

Secretary of Brainerd Credit Bureau Named Secretary-Treasurer of State Organization

26 BUREAUS JOIN

Credit Rating Units Merge at Minneapolis Meet; May Meet Here in 1931

Miss G. P. McCabe, secretary of the Brainerd Credit Bureau, has been named secretary-treasurer of a newly organized state credit association, which may eventually include all credit bureaus in the state.

Coordination of Minnesota's credit rating agencies was begun Wednesday in Minneapolis when units throughout the state organized as the Minnesota Retail Credit Bureaus Association after two days of meeting at the Nicollet hotel.

S. L. Gillfillan, secretary-treasurer of the Minneapolis Credit Exchange, Inc., was elected president of the new association. Other officers chosen are: H. H. Dammann, Rochester, vice president; Miss G. P. McCabe, Brainerd, secretary-treasurer; George Fairley, Duluth, director, and R. E. Walker, St. Paul, director.

Service of association members will be extended to cover all parts of the state as soon as possible, Mr. Gillfillan said.

Miss McCabe returned to Brainerd Thursday. She announced that she had invited the newly organized group to hold their early 1931 summer meeting in Brainerd. The invitation is expected to be favorably acted upon at an early date. The meeting will cover two days either in June or July, she said.

At the present time 26 bureaus in the state have joined the merged association.

Water Power and Public Utility Policy

IN Referendum No. 57 from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, being a report on Water Power and Public Utility Policy, a committee from the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce considered the question and reported, following which the Chamber voted in accordance with the report. The committee included T. H. Crosswell, chairman, Carl Zapffe and R. T. Campbell.

The questions involved in the referendum are whether the Federal or State governments shall control in development of water power resources, regulation of distribution and rates of public utilities; the extent to which these activities shall be left to private enterprise; the position of the federal government in the business of construction and operation of water power plants and public utilities.

Fifteen questions covering the above points were submitted for answer by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The answers as recommended by the committee are on the basis:

First, that the rights of the states should not be encroached on by the Federal Government, which therefore should not interfere except in matters left to it by the state constitution and the United States constitution; namely, protection of navigation and regulation of interstate commerce.

Second, that private enterprise should be encouraged to develop water resources and develop and operate power and public utilities under state regulation.

The committee recommends sale of the Muscle Shoals project in Tennessee for the reasons set forth in the report of the United States Chamber of Commerce, which we quote as follows: "The problem of what to do with the Muscle Shoals has been under consideration by Congress for over ten years. The original project was undertaken as a war measure. Nitrogen is an important element in fertilizer, however, as well as in munitions of war, and the question of how best to utilize the properties after the war, has turned largely on the question of how the project could be used to the advantage of agriculture.

"The Muscle Shoals project was built to fix nitrogen from the air, and the process then in use required large amounts of power. Such power existed at Muscle Shoals and for this reason the project was undertaken at that point. World wide interest in the nitrogen problem has advanced the art of fixation and materially reduced the electric power requirements of certain processes.

"In the United States there has been such rapid advancement in the capacity of private plants producing nitrogen synthetically, and in the amount of nitrogen produced from gas and coke plants, that we are no longer dependent upon Chile for nitrates; and the process at Muscle Shoals has become so far out of date that they are of little value as a source of nitrogen, either for munitions of war or for fertilizers. As a result the chief value of Muscle Shoals properties is for the generation of hydro-electric power.

"The judgment of this committee that it is unwise for the government to embark on hydro-electric power projects has already been expressed. On the question of the government embarking on the manufacture of fertilizer, the principle applies with equal force.

"We see no reasons why the existing fertilizer plants at Muscle Shoals should not be appraised and sold or leased for what they are actually worth as a means of manufacturing fertilizer, or for any other purpose, and that the same should be done with the power plants. We believe it is unwise for the federal government to engage in the hydro-electric business through the development of power at other points on the Tennessee river. These developments should be primarily under the jurisdiction of the States and the Federal Power Commission and aimed to encourage private enterprise. Any interest that the Federal Government may have in navigation and flood control can be adequately protected by the Federal Power Commission under the provisions of the Federal Waterpower Act."

We recommend, said the Brainerd committee, that as the Muscle Shoals project is not equipped to use the most modern and economical methods of nitrogen fixation and is, therefore, of relatively little value for agriculture or national defense, it be sold or leased as it now stands on the best possible terms.

The local committee calls the attention of the members to the fact that the questions in his referendum will be viewed in different states from various angles and wish to suggest that members should be guided in the vote by consideration of the interests of the State of Minnesota and of Brainerd, which has been the standpoint of the committee.

Why the Censorship?

It is reported that a government censorship has been clamped on some 13 countries of the old world and the man in the street wonders what it is all about. In spite of peace prizes and peace treaties, preparation for war goes on in Europe as well as Asia.

In spite of the example of a World War, the world seems to have forgotten the lesson it was supposed to learn at that time. The reason the World War came like the flash of a bolt of lightning is because the censorship at that time forbade many discussions and kept in the background vital news.

Frank B. Kellogg, awarded a Nobel peace prize, has called attention to the fact that another World War will sap civilization and kill white supremacy.

If a general war ever starts it will be hideous compared to the former one, because of the new inventions in death dealing gases, poisons, and general machinery of warfare. Instead of being confined to the regular combatants it will extend to the rear and envelop all citizens, non-combatants, men, women and children. A factory or a farm will be considered as essential in the fighting game and morale as a fort or ship.

UPWARDS of 80,000 persons will crowd into Yankee Stadium Saturday to see the most colorful sport pageant of the season, renewal of the football feud between teams representing the United States Military and Naval Academies. The proceeds will go to the unemployed fund.

THOUGH "service" is a much used and often abused word, there are still places where the genuine brand is appreciated. In advertising and selling especially, it is essential.

SINCLAIR LEWIS ACCEPTS NOBEL PRIZE AND GIVES AMERICAN LIFE PUNGENT CONDEMNATION

terms of equality with the banking barons," the author said. "But the artist is oppressed by something worse than poverty. He is oppressed by the feeling that what he creates does not matter and that readers expect him to be a decorator or a clown."

Remarking that the artist in the United States is without an institution to which he can turn for inspiration and acceptable criticism or valued praise, Lewis said the American Academy of Arts and Letters "has no relationship with American life and aspirations." He said the academy included a few excellent members, such as Nicholas Murray Butler and Edith Wharton, but he deplored the omission of Dreiser, O'Neill and 11 other writers as "the exclusion of most of our few giants." On the other hand, he said, the Academy "found room for bad poets, insignificant playwrights and two gentlemen known only because they are presidents of universities."

Most universities and colleges in the United States are divorced from reality, he said.

"These and the American musical emporiums, schools for teaching of theology, plumbing and sign painting are as thick as motor traffic," he continued. "Students in America everywhere are equally ardent about avoiding the disadvantage of becoming learned and about gaining social prestige or a bachelor of arts degree."

He ridiculed what he termed "the inflated importance" of college football and told his audience of scholars that "a great college football game is passionately witnessed by 80,000 persons, who paid five dollars apiece and motored ten to a thousand miles for the ecstasy of watching 22 men chase one another up and down a curiously marked field."

"A capable player nearly ranks with our greatest and most admired heroes, even with Henry Ford, Herbert Hoover or Colonel Lindbergh," he said.

He condemned the usual courses in literature at American universities. "American professors like their literature clear, cold, pure and very dead," Lewis said. Criticism in the United States, despite a wealth of talent, "is a chill activity pursued by jealous spinsters, former baseball reporters and acid professors."

He referred to Hamlin Garland, the American novelist and dramatist, as the inspirer of his own youth, but he said he was "afraid Garland would be acutely annoyed to know he enabled me to write of America as I see it."

Lewis' speech was written during his ocean voyage to Sweden to receive the Nobel prize.

ALL CITY RELIEF IS INVESTIGATED

No Claims Approved Until Workers Satisfied That They Are Just

All relief provided through the city poor fund is first investigated thoroughly to satisfy the city that the one receiving aid has a legitimate claim, Harry L. Creger, chairman of the poor committee, reported today to quell rumors that in some instances Brainerd wage earners have received aid in the way of Thanksgiving baskets.

"The poor committee cannot give out baskets. The claims must first pass the approval of Miss Eula Michael (city nurse) and when aid is seen as necessary, orders are given on Brainerd stores," Mr. Creger said. The same rule will hold in respect to moneys received through the Brainerd Community Relief Fund. All applications must be approved by Miss Michael and members of the approval committee of the executive committee of the fund: Mrs. W. F. Dieckhaus, M. McDonald, Archie Falconer.

Mrs. W. C. Mann is now aiding Miss Michael in taking down information regarding claims for aid. Any receiving aid must be bona fide residents of Brainerd.

McCABE ON STATE CREDIT GROUPING

Secretary of Brainerd Credit Bureau Named Secretary-Treasurer of State Organization

26 BUREAUS JOIN

Credit Rating Units Merge at Minneapolis Meet; May Meet Here in 1931

Miss G. P. McCabe, secretary of the Brainerd Credit Bureau, has been named secretary-treasurer of a newly organized state credit association, which may eventually include all credit bureaus in the state.

Coordination of Minnesota's credit rating agencies was begun Wednesday in Minneapolis when units throughout the state organized as the Minnesota Retail Credit Bureaus Association held two days of meeting at the Nicollet hotel.

S. L. Gillfillan, secretary-treasurer of the Minneapolis Credit Exchange, Inc., was elected president of the new association. Other officers chosen are: H. H. Danmann, Rochester, vice president; Miss G. P. McCabe, Brainerd, secretary-treasurer; George Fairclough, Duluth, director, and R. E. Walker, St. Paul, director.

Service of association members will be extended to cover all parts of the state as soon as possible, Mr. Gillfillan said.

Miss McCabe returned to Brainerd Thursday. She announced that she had invited the newly organized group to hold their early 1931 summer meeting in Brainerd. The invitation is expected to be favorably acted upon at an early date. The meeting will cover two days either in June or July, she said.

At the present time 26 bureaus in the state have joined the merged association.

RIVAL HEAVIES ARE BILLED FOR 10 ROUND BOUT

DRAWS NATIONWIDE INTEREST,
MAY GROSS OVER
$125,000

FIGHT IS CHARITY BENEFIT FOR
ILLINOIS STATE UNEMPLOY-
MENT COMMISSION
By DIXON STEWART

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—W. L. "Young" Stribling was a prohibitive favorite today to retain his ranking at the top of the heavyweight class against the challenge of Tuffy Griffiths.

The rival heavyweight title contenders are billed for ten rounds, or less, at Chicago stadium tonight and although few boxing observers credit Griffiths with more than an outside chance of victory the bout has attracted nationwide interest and is expected to gross more than $125,000.

With the two principals included among the "first five" in the heavyweight division, the bout, held as a "charity benefit" for the Illinois State unemployment commission, ranks as the first major heavyweight attraction since Max Schmeling acquired the world championship on a foul punch by Jack Sharkey six months ago tonight.

The National Boxing association, which controls prize ring activities in 30 states and is affiliated with numerous foreign commissions, has ruled that Schmeling must defend his title against the winner. If Schmeling declines, tonight's victor will be recognized by the N. B. A. and affiliated organizations as world champion.

Madison Square Garden of New York, which has controlled the heavyweight class for the past decade and which probably will stage the next championship fight, also is interested in the Stribling-Griffiths clash even though it is promoted by a rival organization.

The Garden hopes to retain control of the division by "building up" its favorite candidate, Jack Sharkey, as Schmeling's next opponent.

Stribling is risking his ranking as outstanding contender for the title in tonight's bout. A defeat or draw would cost him the prestige won by his quick knockouts of Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott.

His experience gained in 293 professional bouts during the past 10 years and his heavier punching ability have made him a 2 to 1 favorite.

Inevitable Accidents

"Vis major" is a civil law term used to denote an inevitable accident—that is, one that could not have been avoided by the exercise of care because it is the result of the operation of the forces of nature.

SEVEN MEMBERS OF SCHOONER PICKED UP IN LIFEBOAT

New York, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Seven members of the crew of the schooner Amy G. McKean were picked up at sea in a life-boat during the night by the Swedish steamer Strassa, the latter informed the Chatham, Mass., station of the Radio Marine corporation today.

The schooner was bound from Queenstown, Ireland, for Halifax, N. S. The Strassa's message said the McKean's crew abandoned the vessel, which had become flooded, after setting fire to it.

It was believed the crew had set the schooner ablaze so the bulk would not become a hazard to navigation.

The Strassa said the McKean's crew was picked up at latitude 50.28 north, longitude 20.08 west, a position roughly 450 miles south-east of Ireland, close to the north Atlantic steamer lane.

The Strassa was bound for Boston.

BANDIT KILLS

RESTAURANT OWNER

Russell, Ky., Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—A bandit shot and killed Amos Johnson, 45, proprietor of a restaurant, and wounded two of Johnson's customers today in an attempted robbery. The robber, who escaped, fired when Johnson and the customers were slow in raising their hands. The wounded were Thurman Blake, 25, expected to die, and George Meadows, 42, who suffered a head wound.

RIVAL HEAVIES ARE BILLED FOR 10 ROUND BOUT

DRAWS NATIONWIDE INTEREST,
MAY GROSS OVER
$125,000

FIGHT IS CHARITY BENEFIT FOR
ILLINOIS STATE UNEMPLOY-
MENT COMMISSION
By DIXON STEWART

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—W. L. "Young" Stribling was a prohibitive favorite today to retain his ranking at the top of the heavyweight class against the challenge of Tuffy Griffiths.

The rival heavyweight title contenders are billed for ten rounds, or less, at Chicago stadium tonight and although few boxing observers credit Griffiths with more than an outside chance of victory the bout has attracted nationwide interest and is expected to gross more than $125,000.

With the two principals included among the "first five" in the heavyweight division, the bout, held as a "charity benefit" for the Illinois State unemployment commission, ranks as the first major heavyweight attraction since Max Schmeling acquired the world championship on a foul punch by Jack Sharkey six months ago tonight.

The National Boxing association, which controls prize ring activities in 30 states and is affiliated with numerous foreign commissions, has ruled that Schmeling must defend his title against the winner. If Schmeling declines, tonight's victor will be recognized by the N. B. A. and affiliated organizations as world champion.

Madison Square Garden of New York, which has controlled the heavyweight class for the past decade and which probably will stage the next championship fight, also is interested in the Stribling-Griffiths clash even though it is promoted by a rival organization.

The Garden hopes to retain control of the division by "building up" its favorite candidate, Jack Sharkey, as Schmeling's next opponent.

Stribling is risking his ranking as outstanding contender for the title in tonight's bout. A defeat or draw would cost him the prestige won by his quick knockouts of Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott.

His experience gained in 293 professional bouts during the past 10 years and his heavier punching ability have made him a 2 to 1 favorite.

Inevitable Accidents

"Vis major" is a civil law term used to denote an inevitable accident—that is, one that could not have been avoided by the exercise of care because it is the result of the operation of the forces of nature.

SEVEN MEMBERS OF SCHOONER PICKED UP IN LIFEBOAT

New York, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Seven members of the crew of the schooner Amy G. McKean were picked up at sea in a lifeboat during the night by the Swedish steamer Strassa, the latter informed the Chatham, Mass., station of the Radio Marine corporation today.

The schooner was bound from Queenstown, Ireland, for Halifax, N. S. The Strassa's message said the McKean's crew abandoned the vessel, which had become flooded, after setting fire to it.

It was believed the crew had set the schooner ablaze so the hull would not become a hazard to navigation.

The Strassa said the McKean's crew was picked up at latitude 50.28 north, longitude 20.08 west, a position roughly 450 miles south-east of Ireland, close to the north Atlantic steamer lane.

The Strassa was bound for Boston.

SCHMITZ'S GRAND OPENING SATURDAY

New Food Service Department Added to Business at 215 South
Sixth Street

BIG IMPROVEMENT MADE

Proprietor Builds up Progressive Business in Newspapers, Magazines,
Fountain Service

Starting in the basement of a South Sixth street store with the agency of one newspaper five and a half years ago, the grand opening Saturday of Edward W. Schmitz's expansion store at 215 South 6th street will be in the way of a celebration attesting to the foresight, business ability and faith in the community of the owner.

One word has become the business name of the new department which will cater to appetites in the way of soups, sandwiches, salads, beverages and soda fountain service. It is—Schmitz's.

Mr. Schmitz will likewise continue to operate his extensive Service News department also which has grown district wide.

A 16 feet luncheonette fountain, nine booths and eight bench tables have been installed in the food catering service. Armstrong linoleum of flagstone design has been laid throughout the store. The wall paper is of modernistic design while seven chandeliers have been hung to provide general lighting. Two departments have been specially arranged. On one side is the food catering service where table lamps give a soft lighting effect. The other department contains two arrays of books and magazine shelving containing as complete a line of publications as in any newstand and book store in the northwest. Indirect lighting effects have been installed to properly display it.

Mr. Schmitz announced his personnel today as follows: Edward W. Schmitz, proprietor, manager; C. Elmer Anderson, Leonard Boeder, William Dean, George Carpenter, Miss Freda Menz and Miss Marie Gabourie.

Mr. Dean is formerly of Walgren's. Mr. Carpenter, formerly of Chapman's, Minneapolis.

In the news service, Mr. Schmitz employs 14 carriers. He is the agent for 12 newspapers and 340 magazines covering every known subject. The book department contains 1,000 different novels, autobiographies, etc.

The cost of the improvement was $6,500, the business representing an outlay of over $25,000.

In celebrating the opening, the store will give out 100 autographed copies of a motion picture star, 2,000 popular magazines, two copies to the first 1,000 visitors, and 300 hit of the week records.

Starting next June Schmitz will inaugurate an extension service in newspapers and magazines by providing daily service to towns intervening between Brainerd and Bemidji and Brainerd and Detroit Lakes. At the present time two trucks cover daily the following district towns: Sauk Rapids, Rice, Royalton, Little Falls, Ironton, Crosby, Deerwood and Aitkin. Mr. Schmitz started in business in the basement location of 212 South 6th street. He moved to Laurel street at the location later to become a part of Scott's store. He moved to his present location in 1929.

IRISH WON IT THREE TIMES IN PAST DECADE

PROF. FRANK DICKINSON PRESENTED TROPHY AT THE ANNUAL DINNER

SPEAKERS INCLUDE ROCKNE, STAGG, REV. O'DONNELL, GRIFFITH, WILSON

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The Pittman trophy, emblematic of the national football championship, today was in permanent possession of Notre Dame University.

Prof. Frank Dickinson of Illinois University, originator of the Dickinson system of scoring by which championships are determined, presented the trophy at the annual dinner given the Notre Dame team last night. The trophy was awarded permanently in recognition of Notre Dame's having won it three times in a decade.

Principal speakers at the dinner were Coach Knute Rockne, Coach Alonzo A. Stagg of Chicago University, the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame, John L. Griffith, western conference commissioner, and Kenneth L. Wilson, director of athletics at Northwestern, one of many schools Notre Dame has defeated on the gridiron.

Rev. O'Donnell directed his address at opponents of football as a college-ate sport and defended it against persons he termed "reformers." "When all is said and done there is some appeal which football makes to the best of our American people and that appeal cannot be ignored," he said.

Coach Alonzo A. Stagg of Chicago University, as much as Knute Rockne of Notre Dame, is the man responsible for Notre Dame's victories even if Stagg's own Maroons did finish last in their own conference this fall.

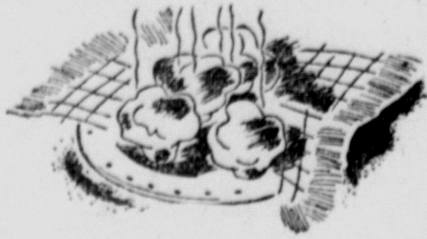

Rockne made the announcement last night at a banquet honoring the 1930 Notre Dame team. Stagg deserves credit, he said, because in 1914 Notre Dame adopted Stagg's system of play.

Stagg, who had gone to the banquet to help pay tribute to one of the greatest teams he never coached, was surprised to find himself suddenly handed the praise for the games the team had won.

Having passed a lot of the credit for his own victories to someone else, Rockne paid tribute to his boys and ended by predicting "another bad year for the team in 1931."

IRISH WON IT THREE TIMES IN PAST DECADE

PROF. FRANK DICKINSON PRESENTED TROPHY AT THE ANNUAL DINNER

SPEAKERS INCLUDE ROCKNE, STAGG, REV. O'DONNELL, GRIFFITH, WILSON

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 12.—(UP)—The Pittman trophy, emblematic of the national football championship, today was in permanent possession of Notre Dame University.

Prof. Frank Dickinson of Illinois University, originator of the Dickinson system of scoring by which championships are determined, presented the trophy at the annual dinner given the Notre Dame team last night. The trophy was awarded permanently in recognition of Notre Dame's having won it three times in a decade.

Principal speakers at the dinner were Coach Knute Rockne, Coach Alonzo A. Stagg of Chicago University, the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame, John L. Griffith, western conference commissioner, and Kenneth L. Wilson, director of athletics at Northwestern, one of many schools Notre Dame has defeated on the gridiron.

Rev. O'Donnell directed his address at opponents of football as a collegiate sport and defended it against persons he termed "reformers." "When all is said and done there is some appeal which football makes to the best of our American people and that appeal cannot be ignored," he said.

Coach Alonzo A. Stagg of Chicago University, as much as Knute Rockne of Notre Dame, is the man responsible for Notre Dame's victories—even if Stagg's own Maroons did finish last in their own conference this fall.

Rockne made the announcement last night at a banquet honoring the 1930 Notre Dame team. Stagg deserves credit, he said, because in 1914 Notre Dame adopted Stagg's system of play.

Stagg, who had gone to the banquet to help pay tribute to one of the greatest teams he never coached, was surprised to find himself suddenly handed the praise for the games the team had won.

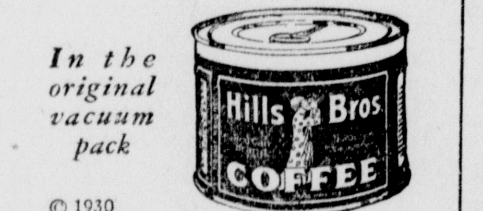

Having passed a lot of the credit for his own victories to someone else, Rockne paid tribute to his boys and ended by predicting "another bad year for the team in 1931."

McAllen, Texas, Dec. 12.—(UP)—Sensational charges alleging that county officials have "for many years systematically looted the public treasury of Hidalgo county and that no less than $6,000,000 has been stolen by a political ring," were contained in a thirty page petition on file today in Judge J. E. Leslie's 93rd district court.

MEET AT ST. PAUL

1930 Tourist Business Brings 1,461,865
Visitors to State; $76,768,290
Spent

R. R. Gould, Henry I. Cohen, Frank Lowey and C. N. Erickson left this morning for St. Paul to attend the fourteenth annual convention of the Ten Thousand Lakes Greater Minnesota Association, being held at the Ryan Hotel.

An open forum luncheon was held at 12:30 p. m. in the Athletic club. Bishop G. G. Bennett, head of the Episcopal diocese of Duluth spoke on "Minnesota, the Land of Milk and Honey."

Mayor Bundlie welcomed the visitors at the opening of the convention, following which Frank S. Gold of Minneapolis, president of the association spoke.

This afternoon two question box sessions were conducted, one by W. H. Byerly, immigration agent for the N. P. railroad, for bankers and realtors, and one by Arthur L. Roberts of Wisconsin for the resort owners.

Minnesota's 1930 tourist business brought 1,461,865 visitors from other states and $76,768,290 in cash according to the annual report of H. C. Hotelling, secretary of the Ten Thousand Lakes-Greater Minnesota Association, which was also made public today. The report also shows that while there was an increase in the number of persons seeking Minnesota farms that less sales were made than during 1929.

This year the association conducted advertising in publications with combined circulations of more than 13,000,000. Part of this advertising was devoted to attracting tourists and part to induce farmers of other states to move here. In response to this advertising 15,174 persons wrote concerning vacations and 5,614 persons were interested in Minnesota farms. During 1929 10,535 inquiries were received concerning vacations and 3,000 asked about farms.

There evidently was a greater interest in Minnesota both as a vacation and farm state this year according to H. C. Hotelling, secretary of the association, but financial conditions forced many to change their vacation plans and those who would buy farms were unable to secure the money with which to purchase. It is Mr. Hotelling's belief that when conditions improve that Minnesota will experience a greatly enlarged tourist business and more farm sales.

This year bankers and realtors reported to the association that they sold 858 farms with a total acreage of 117,262. This represents an average sale of about 10 farms to a county and takes into consideration only those which were reported to the association. Mr. Hotelling says that undoubtedly many hundreds more were sold which were not reported. He also says that there were many private sales from one farmer to another and that none of these are included in the report. During 1929 which was the peak year for some time in Minnesota as far as farm sales are concerned, those reporting to the association had sold 1,567 farms with a total acreage of 193,421.

The growth of the tourist business according to Mr. Hotelling's report is reflected in the ever increasing number of new resorts and the enlarged facilities of established places. There are 1040 resorts in Minnesota as compared with 600 five years ago. Many of the original 600 have doubled or trebled their capacity and there are indications that several resorts will make extensive improvements during the winter months in preparation for the summer of 1931. Several new high-class resorts were opened for the first time during 1930.

At Meeting of Chiropractors

Dr. Grace Williams and Dr. Alma Finsky have returned from Little Falls where they attended a meeting of the Sixth District chiropractors, meeting at their regular monthly meeting Wednesday evening.

Dr. L. Charles Albro of Minneapolis, vice president of the National Chiropractors association gave a talk on diseases. Dr. E. W. Keck and Dr. E. J. Boyce, also of Minneapolis addressed the group, Dr. Boyce giving an illustrated talk on the spine and vital organs of the body, and Dr. Speck speaking on organization.

GIRL UNAFRAID

BY

GLADYS JOHNSON

ARDETH CARROLL works in a shop and is being wooed by Neil Burke. Her home life is far from pleasant. She lives with an aunt and a snooping girl cousin.

Bet-Consumed by Jealousy—Chides Ardeth About Neil.

CHAPTER II.

ARDETH hated this room which she shared with Bet. Hated the "golden oak" bed and dresser, scratched and warped with the years. The worn carpet. The broken-arm rocker. All the little softening touches the room owed her. The pink-shaded lamp on the dresser—Neil had given her on her last birthday. The cretonne curtains—three Sundays had gone into their making. The pink bedspread—that had taken the savings of a month. About the frame of the mirror, little photos of her Sunday outings. Pictures Neil had taken. One of herself feeding the swans in the lake. She was looking up and laughing, her hair a light-touched tangle. That was her last Easter dress... She'd sewed on it for a month and she had saved for it for three.

Her father had named her Ardeth.

As Aunt Stel succinctly remarked, "He would!"

It was indicative of Jim Carroll's love of the strange and the beautiful, even in sounds.

Ardeth was amazingly like her father—which was perhaps Aunt Stel's chief reason for disliking her. You don't care to have a reminder of your secret and hopeless love underfoot day and night, though you deny that love, even to yourself.

Jim Carroll had worn that same look of gay courage. That almost rapt air of gazing at some brave sight hidden from others. Charm had played like a flame within him—an unconscious magnetism which had drawn hearts to him as a light draws moths.

The flame of him had drawn the pretty pale moth of Ardeth's mother. She had married this golden boy of her love. She lived him a golden child. And in her secret heart she had never ceased to marvel that Jim Carroll had ever wanted to marry her at all. It had lent her a dazed, slightly breathless air at times.

She never had understood the vivid joy of life in him. She was content merely to idolize him. A frail, slightly pathetic figure Thelma Carroll had been, swung violently through life by the living comet of her love. She lived only in the vivid flame of her man, and when that flame went out—Jim Carroll could not resist the hot excitement of war though he had a wife and child dependent upon him—Thelma had quietly faded away from the earth.

Ardeth had come to live with Aunt Stel at the death of her parents.

Aunt Stel had hidden her feelings well. No one had guessed the violent jealousy which swept her when handsome Jim Carroll had come courting her younger sister, Thelma. After Thelma's marriage, Stel had married Ed Harrison, just to show Jim that she could.

Not even Ardeth guessed why her aunt was so severe with her. She supposed it was because of Bet.

To a certain extent, she was right. Betty Harrison, sandy-haired and pasty, seemed more uninteresting than ever by comparison with her cousin.

At twelve, Ardeth could not be sent to the corner store without annexing at least one attentive male escort. But Neil Burke, by a sort of squatter's right through his residence in the flat below, quickly established his monopoly of the girl. It was then that Bet experienced the same jealous pang her mother had known some years before.

Ardeth Thrilled in Meeting With Idol of Her Dreams

deth had learned to dread the black moods of Neil.

She strove gallantly now to put the situation on a lighter plane.

"Oh, it's gorgeous to be out in the sunshine!" She smoothed the pleats of her short skirt. "Go out through the park, Neil. Let's see the other cars."

It was the first bright day after a week of fog. The park highways were crowded—sedan and limousine; snappy roadster and cut-down Ford.

Little of the snob in the heart of Ardeth, however. The big silent cars spinning past moved her to admiration, not envy. Enough to be alive and happy in the sunshine today. To know one was pretty and young. To feel this secret thrill of expectancy... holding one's breath, it was, in a way... waiting for something glorious to happen.

The cars were checked. The equestrian path crossed the highway here, and the traffic officer was permitting the riders to cross.

Sleek proud horses carrying sleek proud people. They moved through a different world, these high-stepping horses and the men and girls they carried, thought Ardeth.

That blonde girl there in the linen trousers and black coat... a pretty girl, and so sure of herself... Look at her turn and speak to the man on the bay mare beside her.

That man! Ardeth found herself sitting tense—leaning forward, her heart in her eyes.

A tall and laughing young fellow—riding so easily. The sun gleaming on his brown hair, flashing on his white smile.

As though the latent gaze of the girl drew his, the young fellow suddenly looked over. His eyes plunged deep into the eyes of the girl as he went by.

At her side, Ardeth heard Neil draw in his breath jealously.

A moment only, while the riders filed by in the sunshine. A breath of time, when the man on horseback looked deep into the eyes of the girl in the cut-down Ford. Yet in that moment the world had changed for three people.

When the traffic signal was given to go ahead, Neil jammed in the gears viciously. It jolted Ardeth back to reality.

The girl's expression was dazed. Here—all unexpected—he had come riding toward her through the morning sunlight... After all this time she had seen him... And how oddly he had looked at her, as though he too had known her—had recognized the moment.

Awed girl tingled through her, kindling the flame which glowed in her eyes and sparkled in her hair.

Neil's bitter voice cut across her thoughts. "Well, I suppose you're happy, now that you've seen you're Stanford sheik again."

The girl's face crimsoned. "I don't know what you mean."

"Oh, yes, you do!" he answered roughly. "Think I didn't see your face when he went by? Look here—have you been seeing him? Have you gone out with him? Have you?"

Her heart thrilled at the thought, but she answered with offended dignity. "Of course, I haven't—though you've no right to ask? I never spoke to the man. I wouldn't have recognized him if you hadn't made such a fuss about it!"

"No, you wouldn't!" he jeered. "That's a hot one—when you saved that newspaper picture of him for three years!"

Her face flamed. All pretense of dignity was swept away as she turned on him.

"How do you know that? Oh, that miserable little sneak, Bet! She told! You've been talking me over with her! Oh, I hate you, Neil Burke!"

News of the leaders' action leaked out at the capitol and Majority Leader Watson confirmed that a meeting had taken place. It involved a telephone call to Mr. Hoover at the White House.

Unemployment Relief Bill Goes to Conference Today

Washington, Dec. 12.—(UP)—The unemployment relief bill was sent to conference today by the house to adjust differences between its bill which provided $110,000,000 appropriation and the senate bill passed yesterday which increased this amount to $115,000,000.

Speedy action is expected by the conferees so that the measure can be finally approved and sent to President Hoover within a few days.

KID CHOCOLATE MEETS BATTALINO AT NEW YORK TONIGHT

New York, Dec. 12.—(UP)—Kid Chocolate meets Bat Battalion for the featherweight championship of the world tonight in a 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden, and the pugilistic fraternity is still divided into two opposite camps on the fight's outcome.

There are those who claim that the reverses the little Cuban suffered at the hands of Kid Berg and Fidel La Barba have broken his fighting spirit, and that he is no longer the game, courageous little whirlwind he was when he started his sensational ring career in this country.

GIRL UNAFRAID BY GLADYS JOHNSON

ARDETH CARROLL works in a shop and is being wooed by Neil Burke. Her home life is far from pleasant. She lives with an aunt and a snooping girl cousin.

Bet-Consumed by Jealousy—Chides Ardeth About Neil.

CHAPTER II.

ARDETH hated this room which she shared with Bet. Hated the "golden oak" bed and dresser, scratched and warped with the years. The worn carpet. The broken-arm rocker. All the little softening touches the room owed her. The pink-shaded lamp on the dresser—Neil had given her on her last birthday. The cretonne curtains—three Sundays had gone into their making. The pink bedspread—that had taken the savings of a month.

About the frame of the mirror, little photos of her Sunday outings. Pictures Neil had taken. One of herself feeding the swans in the lake. She was looking up and laughing, her hair a light-touched tangle. That was her last Easter dress. She'd sewed on it for a month and had saved for it for three.

Her father had named her Ardeth.

As Aunt Stel succinctly remarked, "He would!"

It was indicative of Jim Carroll's love of the strange and the beautiful, even in sounds.

Ardeth was amazingly like her father—which was perhaps Aunt Stel's chief reason for disliking her. You don't care to have a reminder of your secret and hopeless love underfoot day and night, though you deny that love, even to yourself.

Jim Carroll had worn that same look of gay courage. That almost rapt air of gazing at some brave sight hidden from others. Charm had played like a flame within him—an unconscious magnetism which had drawn hearts to him as a light draws moths.

The flame of him had drawn the pretty pale maid of Ardeth's mother. She had married this golden boy of hers—had borne him a golden child. And in her secret heart she had never ceased to marvel that Jim Carroll had ever wanted to marry her at all. It had lent her a dazed, slightly breathless air at times.

She never had understood the vivid joy of life in him. She was content merely to adore him. A frail, slightly pathetic figure, Thelma Carroll had been, swung violently through life by the blazing comet of her love. She lived only in the vivid flame of her man, and when that flame went out—Jim Carroll could not resist the hot excitement of war though he had a wife and child dependent upon him—Thelma had quietly faded away from the earth.

Ardeth had come to live with Aunt Stel at the death of her parents.

Aunt Stel had hidden her feelings well. No one had guessed the violent jealousy which swept her when handsome Jim Carroll had come courting her younger sister, Thelma. After Thelma's marriage, Stel had married Ed Harrison, just to show Jim that she could.

Not even Ardeth guessed why her aunt was so severe with her. She supposed it was because of Bet.

To a certain extent, she was right. Betty Harrison, sandy-haired and pasty, seemed more uninteresting than ever by comparison with her cousin.

At twelve, Ardeth could not be sent to the corner store without annexing at least one attentive male escort. But Neil Burke, by a sort of squatter's right through his residence in the flat below, quickly established his monopoly of the girl. It was then that Bet experienced the same jealous pangs her mother had known some years before.

Pile Sufferers

End Your Misery Without Salves or Cutting

External treatments cannot permanently end Piles. Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is internal—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. The veins are flabby—the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles an internal medicine must be used to heal and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, a specialist, after years of study discovered a real internal Pile remedy. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients, with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist.

Don't waste time on external remedies or think of the pain and expense of an operation until you have tried HEM-ROID. H. P. Dunn, Johnson's Pharmacy will supply you and guarantee money-back if it does not end all Pile misery. advt.

KID CHOCOLATE MEETS BATTALINO AT NEW YORK TONIGHT

New York, Dec. 12.—(U.P.)—Kid Chocolate meets Bat Battalion for the featherweight championship of the world tonight in a 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden, and the pugilistic fraternity is still divided into two opposite camps on the fight's outcome.

There are those who claim that the reverses the little Cuban suffered at the hands of Kid Berg and Fidel La Barba have broken his fighting spirit, and that he is no longer the game, courageous little whirlwind he was when he started his sensational ring career in this country.
